A Correction

To The Editor
Blairmore Enterprise,
Dear Sir—I felt somewhat amused this morning when my attention was called to the following note in The Enterprise:
"On Monday last Rev. Chalmers and D. R. McIvor journeyed to Landbreck to meet Mr. Longman on the prohibition question, but Mr. Longman failed to put in an appearance."

It might interest your readers to know that until I read the above I had no idea whatever that such a meeting was called, or that I was expected to be there. I might also add that these same gentlemen advertised my name as a speaker at St. Agnes's school of boys, on the 14th inst., but until Mr. Russell Maitland rang up the Arlington hotel at Pincher Creek on the day of the meeting I had no idea that I was expected to be there, and when I got the message I was then leaving by the stage for Beaver Mines and had to catch the train at Cowley crossing for Coleman same night.

A month ago I received a letter to say that I was advertised to take part in a debate at Livingstone, but the letter containing the information did not arrive until the day after the meeting was held. Of course, the gentlemen who spoke at these and other meetings made great capital out of the fact that I was not present, but they carefully guarded the secret as to why I was absent. During the campaign I called several meetings in order to give the electors an opportunity of hearing both sides of the question, but on every occasion I was careful not to advertise the name of the opposition speaker without his consent. I might further add that although my opponents on every occasion referred to me as a paid advocate of booze, that such was not the case, and that the only payment that I ever received was for services rendered last May to the Brewery Workers' Association; but since then all I ever asked for was out-of-pocket expenses, and that has not been paid to me so far.

I must confess, however, that I was latterly opposed to the Liquor Act on principle, seeing that the province would stand to lose millions of dollars annually through the importation of liquor, etc.; but now that the election has taken in an uncertain manner in my favor, I consider it will be our duty to give it a fair trial.

Yours truly,
JOHN LOUGHEAN
Beaver Mines,
July 29th, 1915.

Wilfrid Gariepy Appointed a K. C.

News has been received in Edmonton that Hon. Wilfrid Gariepy, minister of municipal affairs, has been appointed one of His Majesty's council for the province of Quebec by the premier of that province, Sir Lomer Gouin. The appointment carries with it the distinction of "counsel du roi," the French equivalent of "king's counsel."

The nomination of Mr. Gariepy stands as a recognition of the minister's progress in public life from his native province.

Mr. Gariepy was born in Montreal in 1877 and graduated from McGill university in 1903. He is serving his first term in the legislature of Alberta, having been elected to represent Beaver River riding on April 17, 1913. He was sworn in as a member and appointed minister of municipal affairs November 8, 1913.

Lord Kitchener A Perfectly Human Man

"Lord Kitchener," says Mr. Harold Begbie in his book "Kitchener: Organizer of Victory," published in the U. S., begins by assuring us, "is neither the machine nor the ogre of popular imagination. He is perfectly human. There is, indeed, something frank, boyish, and rough-humored in his disposition. He is shy, he has moments when he craves for sympathy. All the same, he does not represent the British character in any of its most amiable qualities. He stands absolutely for the nation just now, but he is not the highest, the best, not even the most likeable of English types. Unruffled, he is the deliberate, work-loving, brusque, quite unimaginative, and very thorough British administrator; roused, he is the jaws of the bull dog."

Britons, Awake!

(This is strong poetry and is appealing to the brave women of England is known to be great. It equally grips strong men for many copies are to be found in the officers' quarters on the firing line. This copy was sent to his father in Toronto by one of the lieutenants in the 2nd Batt., with the comment that the women of Canada might like to read it.)
I can hear the beat of a million feet
In England now stir the
And the rhythmic tread makes my blood
Run red

In spite of our women's guile,
A million men from hill and glen,
From city, forge and farm,
Are answering fast to the bugle's blast,
And the shout "To Arms! To Arms!"

Prudently they come with tuck of drum,
Steadily and stern and strong,
Lords of the soil and stout sons of toll,
To fight a nation's wrong.

To fight and if need be, to die,
To keep our name from the taint of shame
And blazon it on the sky.

Oh, women who love them bow your heads,
Thank God for the gift he gave.
Your breasts have suckled a lion's brood,
The bravest of the brave.

No hearing host with brawling boast
Of mastery of the world,
True sons of peace when war shall cease
And their battle dogs be forth.

To avenge their murdered kin
The world shall know, wherever they go,
They will fight to the death or win.
They have heard the cry that rose on high.

When gallant Belgium fell,
And the German flood in seas of blood
Made won-er's life a hell.
With knitted brows, they lift their plounges,

They are aroused from our factories then;
Marched to the fight with bayonets bright,
To avenge or die like men.

The sword of France or the English lance
Flashed bright in the summer's sun,
And side by side in their matchless pride
They will fight till the war is won.

Oh, women of England, rich or poor,
Hold high your heads with pride,
For your sons are the bravest men
That can be found in the whole world wide.

For honor they fight and the cause of right,
Not for fame or paltry pay.
They're a nation's heart, not a man was pressed
In all that great array.

They bared the steel that the foe might feel
As a free born people's wrath.
Like the Vikings bold in the days of old
They rose and sallied forth
Through the blistering blaze of the summer haze.

Through the nights of frost and snow
They have fought like men and will again,
Where'er they are bidden to go.
They will never rest till the steel is pressed
In the teeth of a beaten foe.

Oh, Mothers of England, have ye none
Who will aid them in the fray?
No gallant sons who will join the ranks
To help them win the day?

Lads of the good old breed, this is our hour of need,
Your country calls you now,
Upon your feet and say, "England, I'm Your's today."

Swear it and keep the vow.
Think of the brutal host, think of our own East Coast
Where women's blood ran red.

Lads, must I ask again? Lads, must I ask in vain?
Think of the bitter hour when German lust of power
Wrought murder grim and great.

Out of the sea they came, bent on a deed of shame,
Silent and sure as fate
Skulking in craven fear lest our brave lads be near.

They wrought their evil will.
They dared not face our men, but they will come again
To ravish and to kill.

Think of each baby face in its cold resting place,
Hard by the whispering sea,
Children by England bred now sleeping with the slain.

Butchered while playing at mother's knee.
Lads, must I ask again? Lads, must I
ask in vain?

Will you avenge our dead?
Women of England, mothers and wives,
I know your hearts will ache,
You have worn the crown you name in the cross.

Through some of your hearts will break
Mothers and wives, you have worn the crown
Greater than men can wear.

Oh, women, the will of the Gods be heard,
Heavy as death is the cross to bear,
You must give your son to the Moloch
of war;
Though your hearts forever will ache,
The ripened fruits of the cradle days
You must send to the front for your lover's sake.
Some will go down in the bitter strife,
Some will return no more.
Oh, women, the will of the Gods be heard,
'Tis the aftermath of war,
But your sons must fight lest ye be shamed.
By the women's deeding force,
Your honor is dearer to them than life.
Mothers, you must let your strong sons go!
They will fight for you, ye will pray for them.
As ye prayed in the cradle days,
The Gods have given this cross to bear.
Ye cannot fashion their ways.
Now then, mothers, send them forth
To stand by the battle's van,
Dare lift your eyes to the starlit skies
And thank God you have mothered a man.

Power of Ten Dollar Bill

Consider the power in a ten dollar bill when it is spent at home. It is like magic. It circulates. It pays off a hundred obligations. It creates business and puts people to work in our community. But the ten dollar bill that is sent away to the out-of-town house does nothing for our town. It becomes dead to us. It is out of commission forever as far as our town is concerned. We never see it again. Let us, then, give power to the money we spend. Let us remember that our best investment is that money power that we spend at home.

Things That Don't Happen

The Old Subscriber—Good morning, Mr. Editor, just dropped in to leave you a mess of new potatoes and tell you that your paper gets better every week. Your account of my daughter's wedding was written in good style. I'll take about 25 worth of extra papers. Say you did the other editor up in great shape in regard to licensing saloons. By the way, here's a dollar and a half, send your paper to that son-in-law of mine in Oak Lake. Guess I'd better give you another dollar and a half and let you send it to my wife's sister back in Kokomo. My crops are looking fine. Well I guess I'll be going to run for sheriff and want you to say a good word for me. Of course you can't work for nothing, so here's ten dollars—but just then the editor woke up.

Let's Be Up-to-date

Observing the success of the Billy Sunday methods in the matter of conversion, "Puck" rises to suggest that the attempt be made to apply the same method to other church ceremonies and activities, proposing the following formula:

Pastor (christening infant)—What do you want to call this little of excess baggage, boy?

Presiding Parson—What miserable snuff gives this skin to be married to this girl?

The Bride's Father—I'm the guy. Industries United—Slide, you ice-cream slide!

Passing the Plate—Come across with the ten men, you low-lived lightwads! Sunday School Superintendent—All of you little fluffers that want to eat Satan stand on one leg.—EX.

Our Neighbors

To love your neighbor as yourself, is what the Good Book teaches, to lay your hat on the shelf, and think all people peaches. To such a height we cannot soar, such precepts we're defying; we do not love the man down door, and waste no effort trying. He has so many grievous faults that love could never abate them, and ordinary language fails when we enumerate them. His sins are measured by the yard, his vice is obvious; against such men we are "on guard"—we have to be exclusive. We're always looking for the sins of those who live around us; we say they bruise our moral skins, and worry and confound us. To all their virtues we are blind, while of their faults we're screaming; we seldom look about to find their qualities redeeming. If we would train ourselves to look for good in rather fellow, and not assume a man's a crook until he shows up yellow, we'd see our neighbors growing wings, we'd find them folks to cherish, and envy and such evil things from this old world would perish.—Uncle Walt.

Alberta has gone "dry" by an overwhelming majority. Even the cities, with one exception, have voted for prohibition.

This is a surprise to all who realize the financial disaster that will inevitably be caused by the adoption of this measure—a disaster that will entail all the more suffering because it will come at a time of acute financial depression. The result of the vote can leave no doubt in the mind of anyone concerning the enormous strength of the sentimental wave sweeping over the world in opposition to the use of alcoholic beverages. There cannot be the slightest doubt that the people are sincere and honest in their desire to rid the country of the recognized curse of alcoholism. They are not misled by the crank and false date. Some have been so misled, but to great movement, such as that which swept over Alberta the other day, can be accounted for on any other grounds than that the people are willing ### to try anything that seems to promise freedom from the alcoholic nuisance.

The Post has always opposed prohibition. It has always opposed any movement that is coercive in nature. It probably always will maintain that attitude. Still, this paper cannot fail to recognize the high motives of those who are willing to sacrifice prosperity, in order that an ideal may be achieved, even when serious proof that that ideal cannot be achieved by compulsion is available.

In a recent issue of the Literary Digest, the results of prohibition, so-called, in Russia are given. The figures are taken from leading Russian authorities.

According to the Russki Vrach, of Petrograd, the increase of mortality from alcoholism in that city is fairly notable. According to official data, there were twenty-five cases of death from delirium tremens in the period from August 17th to September 12th, last, in that city. From September 14th to October 11th there were thirty-three cases. From October 12th to November 8th there were thirty-four cases. From November 9th to December 6th there were forty-three cases. From December 7th to January 3rd there were fifty-three cases. From January 4th to January 31st there were fifty-six cases. From February 1st to February 28th there were sixty-six cases.

Commenting on these figures, the writer in the Russki Vrach says:

"Before prohibition, the mortality figures varied and changed without regularity; after prohibition, they show a regular and constant increase. The prohibition measures were becoming stricter and stricter; at first the sale of vodka was forbidden everywhere but in the first-class restaurants; then the prohibition was extended also to those restaurants, but with the permission to sell beer and wine, and lastly there followed a general prohibition of the free traffic in any and all alcoholic drinks in general. And the mortality from alcoholism increased as those measures progressed.

"The constant rise of the mortality figures, which bears testimony to the growing number of convalescents of different degrees of alcoholism, shows that these are used not only by confirmed drunkards, but generally by those classes who, before the prohibition law, used to drink moderately. From the report of the Russian Hospital at Petrograd, it can be seen that, among the victims of alcoholism who entered the hospital, were persons of all ages—mainly twenty to thirty years of age—and all occupations."

Another journal says that not only drinking in its worst form increased, but that gambling has also increased to a deplorable extent. Still another journal, the famous Novoye Vremya, strongly advocates the importance of providing some form of diversion for the people that will take the place of alcohol. It corroborates the other papers in regard to the prevalent use of destructive substitutes for the national beverage.

These conditions, deplorable in Russia, are conditions that we may expect to see develop in Western Canada as prohibition comes into effect. The people have resolved to give prohibition a trial. Let them do so—but when they undertake to give it a trial, they should be prepared to cope with the dangerous conditions that accompany such a system. All countries have found that a radical change in social life cannot be made without adopting a substitute for an age-long custom that is desired to eradicate. If we are to have prohibition we should prepare now to solve the problems that will arise out of prohibition. The time to prepare to deal with evil is before the crime, not after they are sprung upon us.—Winnipeg Post.

Engine and Coach Ditched Near Cowley

On Monday morning the engine and baggage coach of passenger 517, west-bound, were ditched a few yards east of the big bridge over the South Fork, east of Cowley.

Engineer F. Bryans was slightly bruised, and Fireman Jack Shultz, of Lethbridge, suffered a broken leg. These were the extent of the injuries. The engine was badly smashed up. Passengers were transferred to train 514 which met the wreck, and which ran back up The Pass at 515.

The recent rains had weakened the track near the bridge over the South Fork, and when the engine struck this place it took the ditch, dragging the baggage coach with it.

The only wonder, as expressed by those who saw the wreck, is that there was not greater damage and that all the cars did not follow the engine, which plunged down the embankment showing the dirt up until it had piled up enough to stop it. There would have been great loss of life among the passengers had such been the case as the drop at this place is in the neighborhood of 80 or 100 feet.

Ten thousand live reindeer are to be delivered in Berlin this year from Norway to be used for food. The Germans, who have spent a winter on the Pacific coast will be used to the rain, dear!—EX.

Cowley Happenings

Dr. Donald spent last week at Mayor.

Mrs. W. C. Robinson has been confined to her bed for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird paid a visit to friends at the North Fork last week.

Mrs. George Morgan, of Coleman, is the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jon Morgan, this week.

Ward has been received from the Peace River country of the death by drowning of one of Cowley's old timers, C. Bryce Miller.

On Sunday afternoon a heavy hail storm struck the district west of here and destroyed a great deal of grain and hay and vegetables.

Miss Alexander, who has been teaching school a short distance out of Calgary, is spending her vacation with her brother Richard.

Much credit is due those who worked so hard for the Liquor Act. The Women's Institute coming in for a share of the credit. Don't forget the meeting next week which was postponed on account of the picnic.

James Bird, with several men, are busy back of the reservoir on the Swinney ranch getting the pipes into shape for running the water to the town which is much needed and will be gladly received.

Yes, Cowley polled a majority of 5 for the dries, the first western town to go dry. All west and the first town east went, so we say "Bravo" for our little town that wants to do right, and may be able to keep it up and see that the law is enforced.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Kean intend leaving next Tuesday for the east to spend a few months among relatives and friends in their old home at Orillia, Ontario. Mr. Kean's health has been slowly failing him, and he hopes the trip will restore him to his wanted vigor. Bob Littlejohn is taking charge of the business during their absence. We wish them a happy journey, and may they both come back feeling much better for their trip.

An accident occurred to the west-bound passenger train on Monday morning just east of Cowley. As the train, travelling at a slow speed, approached one of the small trestles, the earth had just begun to undermine the trestle, with the result that the sagging of the track caused the engine to go upwards to the hillside, where it still stands. The baggage car stood across the rails, while the remainder of the train held intact on the rails. The fireman sustained a broken ankle from falling into a ditch about fifty feet below, and is being attended by Dr. E. The accident delayed railway traffic for about six hours.

The farmers' picnic went off with the usual success on Friday, but the crowd was rather smaller than usual, owing to the rainy weather beforehand. It has been hard to get the work on the ranch done, and with the hay time on hand and harvest near the farmers feel that it is up to them to make hay while the sun shines. However, quite a number attended the picnic and the sports were good. A ball game was played between Cowley, North Fork and the River teams, resulting in a victory for the Rivers. Gordon Robinson, who was catching, had the misfortune to split his little finger, and had to lay off, thus weakening the Cowley team which up to the time of the accident was doing fine work. The best sport of the day was the obstacle race, which was won by Ralph Easterbrook. When diving for the apple in the tub of water, he missed the bite on the surface and followed the apple right to the bottom of the tub. He was a bit wet, but what matter, he gained the bottom of the tub, got the apple, reached the goal and won the prize. The day opened out cloudy, but the rain stayed away until night.

The Red Cliff Bunch

Back in the town of Redcliff where they manufacture shoes,
And spend the evenings playing pool and drinking Redcliff "booze,"
There is a lot of faces missing and times are very slow—
For the lads were patriotic, and to war were bound to go.
Some of them have paid the price, are numbered with the slain;
Some lie in the trenches on the Tyne and the Aisne—
The rest are with me here tonight, and we are still aloft—
On the boom of the ocean on the good "Meganic" boat.
Gunn is playing poker down in the dining saloon,
McClemons on the upper deck gazing at the moon,
A. P. Munro is seasick, I can tell it by his breath,
Bill Lakey's at the piano, and is leaning it to death.
"Bill" Allison is weeping, in an awful state of mind—
"Thinking of that 'chicken' that he left away behind;
While Louisa smoking cigarettes upon the quarter deck—
Is watching for torpedo boats in case the old boat wrecks.
Job Messenger is promoted and each day he pounds the drum—
With a bunch of squealing pipes, you bet he's going strong.
The rest of the "Bunch" are all lined "amidships" for their beer,
When they ring the bell at meal-time, the Redcliff gang are here.
What they'll do on the firing line, as yet it had to tell,
They all declare they're scrapped and will give the Germans hell,
And if we don't fit an iceberg or a German submarine,
They'll be in at the finish—its plainly to be seen.

Const. Lewis has moved his family into the new police barracks.

The Ford Automobile Company, late yesterday, announced a refund of approximately $15,000,000 to owners of Ford automobiles who have purchased their machines since August 1st, 1914. On August 1st, 1914, the company announced that if 300,000 machines were sold during the ensuing year, each purchaser would receive a refund of from $40 to $80. The 300,000 mark was reached yesterday. The company says the refund is strictly in the nature of the pro-distribution policy of the company.—Vulcan Advocate of July 28.

Mrs. J. W. Graham and children will leave next week for England.

The liabilities of the Prudential Life Assurance Co. are being assumed by the Sun Life Assurance Co.

The Norwegian steamer Finelre bound from Wabam, Newfoundland, with a cargo of iron ore for Birmingham, England, has been sunk by a German submarine off the coast of Scotland.

Mother Shipton's

Prophecies

Mother Shipton's prophecies have now become proverbial. The old lady had this peculiarity among prophecies that she foretold events before they occurred instead of after. Her language was quaint as befitted the times—nearly five hundred years ago—but would seem to clearly indicate that somehow she had caught a glimpse of such momentous wonders as the telegraph and the cable, air ships, submarine vessels, steam trains or automobiles, hydro-electric development, tunnels, advancement of learning and other developments in invention and history, the very conception of the most of which would have been quite impossible to the average mind so long ago. In predicting the end of the world in 1881, she made no greater mistake than other prophets who have ventured on this ground.

The accompanying illustration is purely imaginary or not is hard to say. It, together with the following material, appears on a card purchased in the Strand by Mr. Gordon Strath, now the oldest member of the Montreal Stock Exchange, while on a visit to London no less than thirty-six years ago. On the front of the card are these lines:

"MOTHER SHIPTON'S PROPHECIES"
"Have recently been discovered in the British Museum written in an old Manuscript work, A.D. 1448, and portions have been published in the Globe newspaper of Feb. 17th, 1877."

"This wonderful woman lived till she was an extraordinary age. She died at Clifton, in Yorkshire, from which is taken the following epitaph, copied from a stone monument."

"Here lies she who never dy'd,
Whose skill often has been tr'd;
Her Prophecies still shall survive,
And ever keep her name alive."

The following verse appears on the back of the card:

"Carriages without horses shall go,
And accidents fill the world with woe;
Primrose Hill in London shall be,
And in its centre a Bishop's see."

Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye."

Water shall yet more wonders do,
How strange, yet shall be true;
The world upside down shall be;
And gold found at root of tree;
Through hills men shall ride,
And no horse or ass be by his side,
Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, and talk;
In the air men shall be seen,
In white, in black and in green.
A great man shall come and go,
Three times shall live France;
Before her people shall be free,
Three Tyrants shall die she see;
Three times the people's hope is gone,
Three Rulers in succession see,
Each springing from different dynasty,
Then shall the worster fight be done,
England and France shall be as one.

The British Olive next shall twine
In marriage with the German vine;
Men shall walk over rivers and under rivers,
Iron in the water shall float
As easy as a wooden boat,
Gold shall be found, and found
In a land that's not yet known.
Fire and water shall more wonders do,
England shall at last admit a Jew,
The Jew that was held in scorn
Shall of a Christian be born.

A house of glass shall come to pass
In many a generation;
War will follow with the work,
In the land of the Pharaoh Turk;
And State and State in three strife
Will seek each other's life.

But when the North shall divide the South
An eagle shall build in the Lion's mouth.

Taxes for blood and for war
Will come every day;
All England's sons shall plow the land,
Shall be seen' look in hand.
Learning shall so ebb and flow
Water shall flow where corn shall grow
Corn shall grow where water doth flow
Houses shall appear in the valleys below
And covered by hail and snow.
The world then to an end shall come
In eighteen hundred and eighty-one."

SURPRISING CURE OF STOMACH TROUBLE

When you have trouble with your stomach or chronic constipation, don't imagine that your case is beyond help just because you have failed to give you relief. Mrs. G. Stengle, Springfield, N. J., writes, "For over a month past I have been troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate upset it terribly. One of Chamberlain's advertising booklets came to me. After reading a few of them I decided to try them. I have taken nearly three-fourths of a package of them and can now eat almost everything that I want." For sale by all dealers.

This year there will be a greater number of visitors to Canada's lake and river districts than ever before. To these the appeal is made to protect the waters from pollution. The chief attraction of many resorts is the healthy atmosphere and the excellent fishing. Neither of these can continue unless the summer visitors do their part in sanitary protection.

This is a time of financial stringency, and the wiping out of millions of dollars worth of value in hotel and other properties in this province will affect all banks, loan companies, insurance companies, the majority of merchants, a host of employees, and will, therefore, tend toward a financial panic, and will at this stage make things worse rather than better.—Northern News.

The Fernie District Ledger, the official organ of District 18 of the United Order of America, announces that it will suspend publication after July the 31st. We sincerely regret that circumstances make it necessary to cut out the Ledger, which has been one of the most new and interesting papers on our exchange list. We trust it will not long be in suspension, and that its revival will be more strongly appreciated than ever before.

"The Blairmore branch writes of an interesting donation made to the Red Cross society in that town. The secretary says: 'Perhaps you would be interested to know how we were able to make our donation of $100 for medical supplies, in addition to paying for the upkeep of our bed. We were so fortunate as to have a house and lot donated by one of our townspeople and his wife (Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Sinclair) to be sold by auction, and the proceeds devoted to the Red Cross funds. Wasn't that nice?'"

In glancing over our exchanges last week, we notice where an Alberta editor took the trouble to walk out to the cemetery. While there this village scribe noticed the new fence, spruce trees and other improvements. This is the first editor on record, to our knowledge, who has ever walked to such a place to take a glimpse at those who are enjoying the long rest,—most of us can see enough "dead ones" when looking through our front window to satisfy our curiosity until such times as we will meet them face to face "over the border."—Ex.
